Vision

- To preserve the history associated with the business and personal endeavors of the Packard Family
- To preserve the history associated with Packard Electric and the Packard Motor Car Company
- To operate a permanent museum which offers educational opportunities to people of all ages and illustrates the importance of our industrial heritage

Mission and Operating Philosophy

The National Packard Museum is the repository for materials and documents providing information on the history of the Packard Family and industries, Packard Electric, and the Packard Motor Car and transportation related developments.

The museum offers educational opportunities through hands on exhibits and programs for people of all ages with an emphasis on youth education. This is accomplished with the assistance of an advisory council that includes the association membership, active and retired educators and industry professionals.
